APPROVAL OF MINUTES:

Chair, District Board of Trustees

Executive Secretary, District Board of Trustees

Submitted by: Kimberli Sodek, Secretary to the Board
Vice President of Finance and Administration and Controller Lindsey Thomas provided an overview of the annual audit of the College’s financial statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2022. The audit did not identify any deficiencies in internal control over financial reporting that the auditors consider to be material weaknesses. In addition, the results of the tests disclosed no instances of noncompliance or other matters that are required to be reported under Government Auditing Standards.

As presented in the 2021-22 financial statements, the College’s assets and deferred outflows of resources totaled $311 million and liabilities and deferred inflows of resources totaled $115 million. The year-end balance of $195 million represents an increase of $15 million in net position.

Vice President Ford and Associate Vice President for Administrative Services Steve Stanford discussed the Interim Financial Statements for the quarter ended February 28, 2023. Currently, student fees are down approximately $1.4 million due to the decrease in enrollment. HEERF funds are being used to cover tuition and fee revenue loss through FY 2022-23. The expiration date for these funds is June 30, 2023. State appropriations, contracts and grants, and auxiliary revenues are trending as anticipated. Salary expenses are trending $3 million less than budgeted. The reduction in salary expenses will be used to address the increase in utilities and the cost of goods and services.

Vice President Ford and Associate Vice President Stanford provided a review of the proposed allocation of additional recurring state funding which could range from $4.3 million to $7.7 million. There is also a possibility of $2.1 million for expansion of the nursing program. If realized, the additional state allocations, the strategies implemented to reduce salary expenditures, as well as the stabilizing of enrollment should allow the College to consistently maintain a balanced budget in the absence of HEERF funds.

College President John Avendano, Ph.D. provided an overview of the potential sale of the Main Street Building Complex. The College obtained an independent property appraisal that included an estimated value of $4.6 million which is also the offering price from JWB Real Estate Capital, LLC. The future sale would allow the College to recover value in assets it no longer has the intentions of utilizing, and redirect resources to other capital projects. Any future plans for the proceeds will be brought to the Board for approval, once determined.

President Avendano also provided an update on the plans for the UF Downtown Campus. This concludes my report.
1. Work on the Campaign Readiness Study with Erin Phillips; Gonser Gerber, continues to march forward to an August/September 2023 completion deadline.

2. Erin’s task over the next several months will include:
   a) Completion of the Case Statement.
   b) Interview approximately 50-60 donors and community stakeholders for perceptions and interest in giving to the Capital Campaign.
   c) Advise the talent search for additions to the Foundation Development Team.
   d) Conduct training on vetting and the on-boarding of new Foundation Board members.

3. Prospect Management, donor mining, and donor cultivation have been major components of the training provided by Gonser Gerber to staff and Foundation Board members. The effect has led to more effective stewardship practices with Foundation donors and constituent groups.

4. In the wake of the Silicon Valley Bank collapse, and the bank’s place as a facilitator of cash transactions in private equity and venture capital markets, the Foundation has been very timely in sharing situational information with its members about the impact/or non-impact to its investment holdings, and in including them in virtual updates from its investment advisors; the Commonfund.

5. As of February 28, 2023, the aggregate market value of the investment portfolio was $66,442,873. Earnings from the portfolio provide the source to fund scholarships and programs at the College, and total funding for staff and operations of the Foundation.

6. The next “Regular Meeting” of the Foundation Board of Directors (FBOD) will be held on Thursday, May 18, 2023; a little out of sequence with its normal calendar quarter month meeting rotation, adjusted to accommodate some board governance training to be conducted by Gonser Gerber.

7. At its May 2023 meeting, the Foundation Board looks to review and approve its Annual Audit with recommendation from the Finance and Audit Committee, and on approval will then forward the audit on to the FSCJ District Board of Trustee for approval.

This concludes my report.

Re: April 2023 Administrative and Professional Collaborative Report

Chair Bell and Trustees:

The Administrative and Professional Collaborative (APC) is proud to share updates since our last report.

APC Speed Networking events resumed in March and provide an opportunity for administrative and professional employees to meet with colleagues in order to network and build professional connections.

In February and March, APC Representatives hosted informational meetings at their campuses and centers to share updates and gather feedback from A&P employees.

The APC hosted a social on Thursday, March 2 at 5:30 p.m. at River & Post (Rooftop) where employees were able to socialize and network.

The APC Member Spotlight featured Dr. Renata Henderson in March and currently features Michael Pugh for the month of April.

Dr. Jerrett Dumouchel, FSCJ Vice President of Institutional Effectiveness and Advancement will serve as the April APC Brown Bag Lunch Series speaker and will share updates on the SACSCOC reaffirmation process. This presentation will be open to all employees. After the presentation, Dr. Dumouchel will attend the APC meeting on May 4, 2023, to answer any questions the APC Officers and Representatives may have.

Previously, it was shared that Dr. Avendano gathered a group of Administrative and Professional Collaborative, Career Employee Council, and Executive Leadership Team members to serve on an Interest Based Problem Solving (IBPS) committee to address the issues and interests regarding the CARE Project. Using IBPS, the committee continues to identify issues, causes and effects, interests, and data/resources needed relating to the CARE Project.

On Friday, March 31, a call for nominations for the 2023-2024 APC Chair-Elect, Secretary, and campus/center representatives was emailed out to all A&P employees. The deadline for nominations is May 17, elections will take place between May 22-26, and the newly elected officers and representatives will assume their new roles on July 1.

Finally, we will continue to invite College President Dr. John Avendano to our monthly meetings to provide us with updates and take time to address higher-level issues.

Respectfully,

Re:  April 2023 Career Employees’ Council Report

Chair Bell and Trustees:

Thank you for this opportunity to share with you the most recent and numerous milestones achieved by the Career Employees’ Council (CEC). In my report for you, I am pleased to share that the Council is currently focused on examining many ways in which it may improve in, and sustain, operational effectiveness when serving as a collaborative problem-solving partner to any/all actionable data in support of the success of students, College, and staff. In this vein, the milestones shared in this report highlight our focus on:

Operational Effectiveness

Firstly, the Council has been very active in improving its governance of policies, actions, and agility in handling affairs – as well as newly developing objective criteria on measures of success. In the broad interest of facilitating improved synergy with all stakeholders, on November 9, 2022, the Council’s Bylaws Committee was charged with completing the contemporizing of the Council’s Bylaws (last revised in 2015). The Bylaws Revision was completed on March 3, 2023, and is now available to upcoming Representatives’ vote for adoption. In culmination, the overarching Bylaws Revision Project policies are designed to:

- Enhance our recruiting success and team compositions – so that organizational alignments, paired with individual(s) strengths, experience, and interests may bolster service work efforts
- Promote leadership, team and community-building, via integral subcommittee service work
- Provide an improved framework in which our Representatives may engage, organize, execute, monitor, and evaluate initiatives
- Enhance the quality of communications, information, and support response time for our Collegewide stakeholders

The CEC Board expresses great appreciation (in no particular order) to Audrey Antee, Vanessa Gordon, Brian Keane, Lisa Moore, and Shannon Oliver for the invaluable assistance and progress on this vital project.

Secondly, specific to enhancing vision planning, service capacity, and transparency of Council operations, the CEC SharePoint Website (https://fscj.sharepoint.com/teams/CareerEmployeeCouncil) was redeveloped and re-released on January 22, 2023, as a forward-facing intranet communication centerpiece for "All Employees." Within, added emphasis was placed on Customer Focus, "Ask for Help" Resources (to help bridge any gaps in communication and responsiveness), Community Engagement, and Project Management. Future action plans include exploring additional solutions that may provide employees greater access to our Campus/Center Representatives, Team Charter frameworks, as well as providing our Publicity Committee with communication outlets dedicated to employee welcoming, recognition, and recruitment. The Council worked diligently to provide this content within a short span of build time (under one-month) – on which, the Council is most grateful for the continued Web Development and Publicity volunteerism.

Employment Enhancements

For employment enhancement initiatives – as per Council’s Bylaws Mission to “Conduct ongoing studies and make recommendations on policies and procedures for, but not limited to” employment policies and procedures – late last year, the Council was aligned with the Administrative and Professional Collaborative to form the APC & CEC Joint Committee for Employee Enhancements. This Joint Committee then aligned with members of the Executive Leadership Team to form the broader Interest-Based Problem-Solving (IBPS) Committee. In progression, I am pleased to report that the team has been working, with great unity, on The CARE Project Discussion. As of February 23, 2022, the team has progressed to IBPS Phase 5 (of 6), “Brainstorm Multiple Solutions” – with Phase 6, “Reach Consensus on Preferred Options” on the near horizon. The Council wishes to express gratitude to President Avendano, Dr. Wanda Ford, Mark Lacey for the opportunity to assist on this task, and to Audrey Antee for seamless facilitation.

Fundraising and Professional Development

On the Fundraising and Professional Development milestones, the Council executed its annual holiday season Poinsettia and Ferns Sale Event on December 9, 2022, to raise proceeds for the upcoming Spring Book Scholarship Awards – in support of FSCJ Employees’ Education and Professional Development ambitions. The Council acknowledges its signature Fundraising Event would not be possible without the exceptional planning and execution of the event by Tamera Meyer, Camilla Collins, and Cynthia Motzny. Equal appreciation is expressed to the many invaluable Career Employee Representatives that personally delivered the goods to our charitable, collegial patrons. As a result of the fundraiser, our Book Scholarship Awards Committee, chaired by Stephanie Castro, was able to extend the awards to 4 recipients – an increase of one over last year.

Community Engagement

Additionally, regarding community engagement service projects, Council members aligned with members of the Association of Florida Colleges, and the Administrative and Professional Collaborative (APC) to organize and provide employees, on December 2, 2022, the FSCJ Winter Gala: A Holiday Season Community Engagement event involving a full dining experience (3-course meal), a FSCJ Jazz Band musical performance, a DJ and social dancing segment, and an employee recognition segment to top it off. The Council commends Bryan Stewart for leading the well-orchestrated event planning and for the opportunity to contribute to what was referred to as a “well-received and enjoyable” community engagement event by some of those that attended.

Lastly, on January 17, 2023, the Council joined members of the APC and Faculty to form the FSCJ Employee Recreational Sports Planning Committee with APC Chair, Kerry Roth, serving as Lead. In alignment with the broader Visionary Impact Plan 2.1.2, Strategic Initiative specified as, “Create affinity groups and mentoring opportunities for current faculty and staff,” the Council received clearance from VIP 2.0 oversight to begin developing affinity group proposals within Employee
Governance Groups. In this community engagement case, Career Employee affinity groups may center on the interests of “Physical Fitness,” and “Health and Wellness.” This Committee has submitted its proposed programing to the broader HR Health and Wellness Committee for consideration and partnership, and it hopes to deliver on employee engagement activities during the upcoming summer semester – when facilities are more readily available for employee use.

In summation, the Council is committed to the Mission, Vision, and Values of FSCJ. It is fully committed to ensuring that students have a positive and successful student experience. We look forward to continued collaboration as we continue to make FSCJ a great place for our students to achieve their educational goals and for our current and future employees to achieve their professional goals.

On behalf of the Career Employees, we express our appreciation to the District Board of Trustees for your time, effort, and support that you bring to the College community, staff, and students.

Re: April 2023 Faculty Senate Report

Chair Bell and Fellow Trustees:

Enrollment is at the forefront of our faculty members’ minds. I know this is a common refrain in my recent letters, and I know this is also a concern for many at the institution. I am also aware that this is a nationwide issue that is rooted in past bad practices as well as changing concepts related to the value of a higher education. When I look at the recent article from the Hechinger Report (Jon Marcus, “‘The reckoning is here’: more than a third of community college students have vanished,” The Hechinger Report [April 3, 2024] https://hechingerreport.org/the-reckoning-is-here-more-than-a-third-of-community-college-students-have-vanished/) I can see descriptions of some of the same complaints I have heard from my students over the past decade. Institutional disorganization, which for us can lead students chasing answers across campuses and across Jacksonville, was a key feature of how this article describes the failures of institutions to help students succeed. We have gotten better in this regard, there is no doubt. And we are getting much better at getting financial aid into the pockets of students sooner by modifying policies such as our “never attended” policy process. These changes will have slow repercussions over the next few years that we hope will help rebuild our relationship with the community and potential students.

However, our institutional failures and occasional incompetence in the past do not fully explain where we are now. For one, we are demonstrably better in our processes now than we were several years ago and more efficient in getting students through the enrollment pipeline. We are seeing success rates in online tick up slightly with new pedagogical practices. Through work that helps us analyze and understand the cultural, social, economic heterogeneity of our community and our student body, we are designing better course materials and practices to help us reach wider populations. There seem to be other forces at work against us.

One is the economic reality our students face. Online education is getting cheaper, even those programs offered by larger universities. Our students are also well aware of the job market and find it impossible to pass up job opportunities that pay relatively high salaries – without requiring a degree. Even the ‘gig’ economy has had an impact, pulling our students away from their studies and into an immediate source of cash income. The economic calculus for the immediate future does not always add up in our favor.
This economic calculus adds to a growing disenchantment with higher education as a whole. If I could even map the reasons for this, they would be far too complicated to mention here. The economy is part of this for sure. The growing recognition of the costs of higher education on the future of students who need to take out loans to finish their degree is a component as well. And unfortunately, the horror stories we hear reported in the news are not extreme and rare cases, but rather much closer to the norm. And while we cannot change the national discourse around higher education, we can focus on bettering the lives of the students who come to us and on promoting certain qualities of higher education that are both pragmatic and idealistic.

Half of America’s Hispanic students and forty percent of America’s Black students attend community colleges and state colleges. I know anecdotally that one of the main reasons for this is cost and convenience. These students choose colleges not out of a desire to avoid universities or some disdain for them, but because the costs of attendance are too high. We also know that 4 out of 5 students who attend community colleges and state colleges intend to transfer to a four year bachelor’s program — yet only 1 in 6 do so.

I think these facts give us direction. We need to make sure our students feel as though they are not second class students – in other words, we need to think of them as curious adult intellectuals intent on achieving academic ideals. We also need to make sure students are supported through to the end of their careers and give them constant direction on either finishing and transferring to a BA or BS degree, including into our own BS programs, or finding employment. Our Guided Pathways work will help with this but it needs more vigorous attention and support — specifically in the classroom and in our academic support services. Faculty need to understand the career arc of students and work with them holistically — including understanding how the abstract values of higher education can and do help people in their work and their personal lives. Our disorganized academic structure in the AA degree is perhaps a hindrance to this and has eroded the community-oriented nature of campuses.

However, a bigger difficulty is that students do not stay on one campus for all of their classes – they are forced to move from campus to campus to find the courses they need at convenient times and days. We need to help them understand the value of higher education as something that is not transactional, and forcing them to fit into our disjointed schedule does not help with that process. We do not often see students more than once or twice a week on campus because of their schedules. This leaves us little chance to interact with them outside of the classroom or to talk about their future plans. Working on improving our scheduling process and perhaps addressing other workload issues will help strengthen our rapport with students and hopefully improve their outcomes.

Pedagogically I think our moves to humanize our syllabi and our online pedagogy – making the former more readable and understandable and promoting more direct engagement with the faculty member in the latter – put us on track to improve outcomes through our teaching. We must also look into what students need in order to be successful in their work and private lives. I am an academic idealist as anyone will tell you. I feel as though academics has made the human race better. But I also know it is not feasible for many of our students to move on to a university degree.
Reasonably, they look to the working world to provide for them and their futures. And yes, basic mathematical and writing skills will improve their prospects. However, we cannot underplay the importance of reasoning, argumentation, empathy, moral and ethical responsibility, and other skills. And we should be promoting those skills as well.

Students need to learn how to be confronted with differing opinions on all manner of topics and how to integrate their own worldview with those of their fellows in the workforce. They need to learn how to reflect on their actions and even to reflect before acting – as well as understand their own fallibility. They need to be able to express ideas in a professional fashion, with careful attention to detail but also with an audience in mind. They need to learn how to analyze datasets; but they also need to learn about the empathy that makes great leaders and great entrepreneurs.

Businesses work by understanding the demands of the client and living up to unexpressed expectations. They need to interpret the minds and emotions of the customer. To this end, our students need to understand Kantian moral principles. They must be able to see human beings as ends in themselves, not as means to an end. This is what makes them successful in their work lives and in their private lives. Higher education promotes those skills, but I think we can try to do better and be more intentional, because a transactional mindset undermines that moral principle and undermines the communal ties that bind us together.

That concludes my report to the Board.

Re: April 2023 Student Government Association Report

Chair Bell and Trustees:

The Student Government Association (SGA) is the voice of the student body at Florida State College at Jacksonville (FSCJ). Please see the following updates and accomplishments for the period between February 2023 and April 2023.

Since the last report, the SGA has accomplished the following:

- Between February 21-22, 10 members of the SGA traveled to the Tallahassee Community College for the Florida College System Student Government Association (FCSSGA) Legislative Conference. The students attended professional development workshops and traveled to the Capitol building to meet with legislators regarding the bills that affect FSCJ students.

- On March 2, the International Club hosted the Carnival Brazilian Celebration at the Downtown Campus in the Art Gallery. The event provided Brazilian food, dancing, and activities for students and staff to enjoy.

- On March 4, the 56th Annual Talent & Variety Show was held at the Wilson Center. SGA members attended as well as participated as judges in the oldest tradition at the College.

- This spring, members of the SGA have been able to hear professors Dr. Paul McLester (January 31), Janneer Rojas-Coleman (March 2), Jennifer Chase (March 21), Susan Amburgey (March 30), and Dr. David Purificato (April 6) give their Last Lecture presentations.

- During the months of March and April, the SGA hosted Spring Fling events at all of the campuses and centers. These events featured cookouts, games, music, and information tables with various student and community organizations to help celebrate the arrival of the spring season.

- Six members of the SGA attended the Student Activity and Service (A&S) Fee Committee Trainings on March 22 & 25. They will be joined by other student leaders in serving on the A&S Fee Committee and hearing funding proposals from various student clubs and areas of the College that receive A&S fee funding. The proposals will occur between April 4-7. After hearing the proposals, the committee will deliberate on how the funds will be disbursed for use during the 2023-2024 academic year.

- Between March 28 and April 7, members of the SGA participated in the Grad Fest Celebrations by cheering on and serving popcorn to students as they arrived to pick up their Commencement regalia as well learn about FSCJ baccalaureate programs and alumni information.

- Between April 14-15, 11 members of the SGA will travel to the Daytona State College for the FCSSGA End of the Year Conference. The students will attend professional development workshops, vote on the officers to serve on next year’s State and Region Executive Boards, submit FSCJ’s entry into the FCSSGA Scrapbook Competition, and network with other students from across the state.
On behalf of the student body, we extend our deepest gratitude to the District Board of Trustees and College President Dr. John Avendano for continuing to provide the SGA the opportunity to share updates and accomplishments of our students. Thank you for your time and all that you do for the students of FSCJ.

Sincerely,

Breana White
